THE FAR-EASTERN QUESTION.

The text of the long-heralded Manchurian convention between Japan and Russia, signed July 4 at St. Petersburg, was made public in Washington last night. It is one of the shortest, important treaties of modern times, being just 237 words in length. It follows:

"The imperial government of Japan and the imperial government of Russia, sincerely attached to the principles established by the convention concluded between them in July, 1907, and desirous to develop the effects of that convention with a view to the consolidation of peace in the extreme east, have agreed to complete the said arrangements by the following provisions:

"Article 1. With the object of facilitating communication and developing the commerce of nations the two high contracting parties mutually engage to lend each other their friendly co-operation with a view to the amelioration of their respective railway lines in Manchuria and the improvement of the connecting service of the said railways, and to abstain from all competition prejudicial to the realization of this object.

"Article 2. Each of the high contracting parties engages to maintain and respect the status quo in Manchuria resulting from the treaties, conventions and other arrangements concluded up to this day between Japan and Russia, or between either of these two powers and China. Copies of the aforesaid arrangements have been exchanged between Japan and Russia.

"Article 3. In case that any event arises of a nature to menace the status quo above mentioned, the two high contracting parties shall in each case enter into communication with each other in order to arrive at an understanding as to the measures they may judge it necessary to take for the maintenance of the said status quo."

Baron Rosen, the Russian ambassador, stated in his note that he was instructed in making the communication to express fully to the secretary of state the hope that he would find in the convention, which was described as reaffirming Russia's peaceful relation with Japan, and as being directed neither against the interests of China nor those of any other power, a new pledge of stability and general peace in the Far East.

Ambassador Uchida, of Japan, in his communication to the secretary of State said he was instructed to make corresponding representations.

Just before the State Department closed yesterday a dispatch was received from the American Embassy at Tokio, setting forth more fully the attitude of Japan in drafting the new treaty and seemingly disposing of the rumor that a secret treaty had been signed by the two countries.

Heralded as a direct and powerful blow at the United States, it is understood, although requests for a statement on the treaty by the State Department were refused, that officials of this government regard the convention itself as little more than a harmless appendage to the convention between Russia and Japan in 1907.

It is known that the British government agrees with the government of the United States that the open door policy is substantially included in the new treaty and that that policy must be safeguarded in present and in future arrangements. No doubt is felt that the German government, which has cooperated with the United States recently in the far East, takes the same view.

CURTIS DROPS BOMBS.

Crossing the sailing line of the yacht John E. Mehre II., used as a target in place of a battleship, Glenn Curtiss, using oranges as "bombs," gave an exhibition at Atlantic City late yesterday afternoon of his ability to drop high explosives on the deck of the craft. Fearing harm to the officials and ladies on the yacht, Curtiss placed his missiles so accurately alongside that spray was thrown over the bows of the women. Then, whirling away, Curtiss shot his plane far out to sea and in the range of anything but a 12-inch gun, while the yacht passengers and watchers shuddered at the thought of the possibilities had the bombs been spheres of real explosives and the trim and glistering craft the object of real attack.

"The trial shows absolutely that the day of the battleship for attack on foreign cities is nearing its end," declared Col. William Allen Jones, U. S. A., retired, formerly of the engineer corps. "Curtiss could have dropped a bomb on the deck of even that small craft with just as much ease and certainty as he showed when he spun them close enough to the vessel to show his ability without endangering the people on board."

ARDENT LOVER BLINDED.

L. D. Lathaw, who for the past few months has been at the home of his father, Michael Lathaw, a well-to-do farmer, near Ridgely, Md., was at the instance of his father taken into custody

Monday and confined in Denton jail, the father believing his son to be insane and fearing violence at his hands.

The prisoner, aged 38, who is totally blind from having his eyes pierced by shot in Florida several months ago, has had a thrilling experience. While in Denton a week ago he said that sometime ago he met and loved, near his home, in Michigan, a lady of rich parentage. His suit, he said, was objected to by the lady's parents, and in order to break off his attention, they sent her to Florida. He followed her there, and renewed his attention. Here his arrest was ordered.

He said as he had broken no law, he refused to submit to arrest, and shut himself up in his boarding house. A large posse, he said, gathered around the boarding house, and on looking from a window the load from a gun fired by someone in the crowd pierced his eyes.

The father went to Michigan about three months ago and brought his son to his home near Ridgely.

Lathaw is a man of phenomenal strength, it requiring nine men to overpower and place him in jail. A pair of nippers put on him by the sheriff he instantly snapped in two.

OVER A THOUSAND BUILDINGS BURNED.

A waste of smoking ruins extending for two miles around several isolated buildings represented last night the town of Campbellton and the nearby village of Richardsville, N. B., which were overwhelmed Monday by fire driven before a gale. Two lives were lost during the ten hours the fire raged.

Five thousand residents of Campbellton and 400 of Richardsville are homeless.

One thousand buildings in Campbellton and 75 in the village were destroyed.

The combined loss in both places is estimated at $2,500,000.

The total insurance is $1,000,000.

Campbellton was the largest cedar shingle center in eastern America. All the mills were destroyed, including the big plants of the Shives Lumber Company, Richards Lumber Company and the Moffat Mills. The property of these three concerns, in which American capital was interested, was valued at $800,000.

Many of the men who attempted to stay the conflagration were obliged to abandon the hose and flee for their lives when the flames overwhelmed the hundreds of wooden buildings of which the town was constructed. Embers from great quantities of burning shingles, carried long distances by the gale, set fires by the score and for ten hours the destruction went on. The flames burned themselves out in Campbellton and Richardsville yesterday morning, but the forest is still ablaze at many points.

RIOTERS ARRESTED.

The new police officials of Newark, Ohio, early yesterday arrested Weldon Kerr, Charles Bagley, Ed Willis and Edward Shaller and locked them in the city prison charged with complicity in the riot of Friday night.

John Ankele, the new mayor, stated yesterday that he would completely reorganize the police department. In addition to the police department, it is stated that the director of public service, Milton M. Taylor, and the director of public safety, Harry Runkle, will be deposed.

Governor Harmon yesterday turned over to Attorney General Denman the work of investigating the recent rioting and lynching at Newark, with instructions to secure evidence against and prosecute as many of those connected with the lynching as possible.
